Public Sector Nomads presents an opportunity to attend a 1 day event hosted by Rotherham Metropolitan Borough Council, South Yorkshire, to share learning around an innovative municipal office development and the implementation of new ways of working supported by technology.

Are you unsure about new approaches and organisational change? At this event you will hear about Rotherham's experiences – the shrinking of the office space, going digital and working in new ways at the new 'Riverside House' council building. If your organisation needs some reassurance to support your move from aspiration to implementation – come and see for yourself and hear directly from the people involved ...

Fees apply: £149 per delegate.

The mindset behind Riverside House

Housing 2,400 employees at only 1,308 desks (equal to 58 workstations to every 100 staff), Riverside House is designed to mix functions that benefit both staff and public alike.

Employees are able to work flexibly to increase their effectiveness and work life balance by making better use of technology, whilst Rotherham's residents benefit from being able to access many key services and also have the use of a library, gallery and café, making the experience more pleasant and varied.

Staff enjoy working in a modern and innovative space, and also benefit from having the public facilities on site and feel part of this important civic hub in the town centre.

The overall result is that this vibrant and exciting building is a place where members of the public have a better connection with their authority and where staff feel valued.
